WELCOME NOTE from RICHARD M. ABORN

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the fifth annual fundraiser for the Citizens Crime Commission of New York City. We are pleased to celebrate another year of effective advocacy on city, state, and national issues. Positively influencing the criminal justice conversation remains our priority – a goal we have succeeded in carrying out again this year. Of course, none of this work would be possible without the generous support of people like you.

Our advocacy on issues such as gun violence, cybercrime, policing, and juvenile justice requires constant research and analysis in order to develop innovative approaches towards these and other problems. The Crime Commission remains committed to analyzing trends, reviewing current events, and staying at the forefront of these issues by developing solutions to today's and tomorrow's public safety challenges.

We haven't slowed down a bit since last year. In fact, we have been as busy as ever. This year, we published a series of papers on youth gun violence in New York City and the real-world consequences of posting on social media; we continued our calls for action to stop the violence against inmates on Rikers Island; we developed a database for community-based organizations to better track program performance and the needs of high-risk youth; we continued to develop innovative strategies to address the growing problem of conflicts on social media escalating to deadly real-world violence; we worked closely with the NYPD to devise tactics to keep New Yorkers safe; we developed a cutting-edge cybercrime prevention framework to address new and emerging cyber-threats; and we continued to push for reforms to keep youth out of trouble and build healthier communities.

And now we're proud to honor two individuals who play critical roles in keeping New York City safe and who embody the mission of the Crime Commission: Robert S. Tucker and U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara. We thank both of them for joining us tonight, so that the rest of the criminal justice community can show them admiration and praise they deserve.

Thank you all for your outstanding commitment and ongoing support. Enjoy the evening.

Best,

Richard M. Aborn
President, Citizens Crime Commission of New York City

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

The Crime Commission's Distinguished Service Award recognizes an individual who has demonstrated an ongoing commitment to criminal justice innovation.

ROBERT S. TUCKER

Robert S. Tucker has directed the strategic growth and diversification of T&M Protection Resources since becoming a principal of the company in 1999. Prior to that he spent nearly a decade in law enforcement management, serving as Special Assistant to the District Attorney of Queens County, NY, where he developed an extensive network of contacts in the law enforcement community in the New York metropolitan area, while managing administrative aspects of a major urban prosecutor's office. This experience enabled him to work closely with high level members of the New York City Police Department and the City administration, as well as with the FBI, Secret Service and the United States Attorney's Office, where he still maintains valuable relationships.

Today, Mr. Tucker is leading T&M to national and international prominence as a sophisticated, multidimensional protection and investigations company that provides corporations and high net-worth individuals with a full range of products and discreet solutions that enable them to respond to the threats and risks of the 21st Century.

Mr. Tucker, a graduate of George Washington University and the Pace University School of Law, is admitted to practice law in the State of New York and the U.S. Supreme Court. In 2009, Governor David Paterson appointed Mr. Tucker to serve as a Vice Chairman of the NY State Security Guard Advisory Council, and in June 2013, Governor Andrew Cuomo appointed Mr. Tucker to serve as its Chairman. In February 2014, the Appellate Division, Second Judicial Department of the Supreme Court of the State of New York appointed Mr. Tucker as a member of the Committee on Character and Fitness for the Ninth Judicial District.

Among his many professional, civic and philanthropic affiliations, Mr. Tucker is Secretary of the FDNY Foundation and an honorary Fire Commissioner of the City of NY, member of the Board of Trustees of the NYC Police Foundation and member of the Board of Directors and Past President of ALDONYS (Associated Licensed Detectives of New York State). He is also a member of the Board of Directors of White Plains Hospital; Vice President of the Richard Tucker Music Foundation; member of the Pace University School of Law Board of Visitors; member of the Board of Directors of Quaker Ridge Golf Club; and member of YPO (Young Presidents' Organization, Metro Chapter). He served on the Crime Commission's Board of Directors from 2011 to 2015.

Previous recipients of the Crime Commission's Distinguished Service Award include: Gary Beller & J. Brendan Ryan, Crime Commission Board of Directors.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT LEADERSHIP AWARD

The Crime Commission's Theodore Roosevelt Leadership Award recognizes pioneering leadership in the field of criminal justice.

PREET BHARARA

Preet Bharara was nominated by President Barack Obama in May 2009 to become the U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York. Following unanimous confirmation by the U.S. Senate, he was sworn in on August 13, 2009.

As U.S. Attorney, Mr. Bharara oversees the investigation and litigation of all criminal and civil cases brought on behalf of the U.S. in the Southern District of New York, which encompasses New York, Bronx, Westchester, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Rockland and Sullivan counties. He supervises an office of more than 220 Assistant U.S. Attorneys, who handle a high volume of cases that include domestic and international terrorism, narcotics and arms trafficking, white collar crime, public corruption, gang violence, organized crime, and civil rights violations. Under Mr. Bharara's supervision, the office continues to combat corruption in city and state government. The office remains at the forefront of prosecuting corruption in Albany and at the local level, bringing charges and securing convictions against multiple elected officials and other corrupt public servants. The office has also prosecuted more than 500 members and associates of various gangs operating in the Bronx, Newburgh, Yonkers and other areas in an effort to make communities in the Southern District safer for residents.

Mr. Bharara recently concluded a two-year term as a member of the Attorney General's Advisory Committee and as Chair of its Subcommittee on White Collar Fraud. He is Co-Chair of the Securities and Commodities Fraud Working Group of the interagency Financial Fraud Enforcement Task Force.

Prior to becoming U.S. Attorney, Mr. Bharara served as Chief Counsel and Staff Director of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Administrative Oversight and the Courts. From 2000 to 2005, he served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Southern District of New York. Prior to that, Mr. Bharara was a litigation associate in New York at Swidler Berlin Shereff Friedman from 1996 to 2000 and Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher from 1993 to 1996. He graduated magna cum laude from Harvard College with an A.B. in Government in 1990, and from Columbia Law School with a J.D. in 1993, where he was a member of the Columbia Law Review.

Previous recipients of the Crime Commission's Theodore Roosevelt Leadership Award include: Robert M. Morgenthau, Manhattan District Attorney (1975-2009); Richard Girgenti, National and Americas leader for KPMG LLP's Forensic Advisory Services; and Eric T. Schneiderman, New York State Attorney General.

ABOUT THE CRIME COMMISSION

In an effort to improve public safety and policing, the Citizens Crime Commission of New York City was established by the business community in 1978 as a not-for-profit criminal justice policy institute.

Maintaining its focus on converting ideas into action, the Crime Commission addresses gaps in the criminal justice system by combining expertise in research, advocacy, education, and innovation on a broad range of issues from juvenile justice, to gun violence, to cybercrime, to counter-terrorism, to crime prevention strategies.

Collaborating with the business community, government agencies, and the public, the Crime Commission has achieved tangible results:

- The Crime Commission developed and implemented a comprehensive database with community-based organizations operating Cure Violence, an anti-violence program. By collecting data, the Crime Commission – in collaboration with the Department of Health & Mental Hygiene and the Mayor’s Office of Criminal Justice – will understand what strategies work best to stop gun violence in our communities, improve policy on the needs for high-risk youth, and assist organizations in managing program performance.
- In February of 2015, the Crime Commission published an op-ed in the Gotham Gazette calling for real-time oversight in the Rikers Island jails by requiring corrections officers to wear body cameras when amongst the jail population. In July of 2015, a federal judge approved a settlement agreement requiring the NYC Department of Correction to institute a pilot in which body-worn cameras will be worn by staff over all shifts.
- In 2016, the Crime Commission will implement the E-Responder Program, which will serve as a community-based response to harmful behavior and violent warning signs on social media. Trained E-Responders will be able to identify warning signs and intervene before an altercation online escalates into real-world violence. The E-Responder Program was developed in conjunction with New York University.

In concert with its public policy efforts, the Crime Commission releases a variety of publications and hosts forums featuring nationally and internationally prominent speakers. As a result, the Crime Commission has earned a reputation among the public, law enforcement, reporters, lawmakers, and legal professionals as an independent and objective expert on criminal justice and public safety policies and practices.

CYBERCRIME PREVENTION

Preventable human error and behavior weaknesses are estimated to be the cause of 75 to 90 percent of cyber-attacks. To address this emerging problem, the Crime Commission actively seeks to support domestic and transnational efforts to prevent cybercrime and promote a culture of safe, resilient, ethical and sustainable digital communities. By leveraging innovative ideas and an understanding of human behavior, the commission enhances data-driven and human-centered cybercrime prevention initiatives. The Crime Commission is engaged in several risk-specific and targeted cybercrime prevention initiatives designed to help adults, youth, and organizations address pressing cyber issues:

FBI / Crime Commission Alliance on Cybercrime

Through an alliance with the FBI, the Crime Commission is working to provide resources to businesses and individuals about cybercrime, including helpful tips about how to secure a home or company network, report an attack, and keep individuals safe on the Internet.

CyberCraft: Fordham University Cybercrime Prevention Training Series

In response to the emerging privacy and security challenges posed by the growing number of mobile and Internet of Things (IoT) devices, the Crime Commission, in partnership with Fordham University, is developing a cybercrime prevention training series for freshmen. The training series will cover topics such as identity and privacy protection, responsible social networking, and mobile and IoT devices protection. The training modules aim to promote good cyber habits that will build next-generation leaders' confidence and security in the use of information technology in New York City.

Connect Smart

To raise cybersecurity awareness, the Crime Commission applies insights from social design and game theory to develop web-based motivational and interactive educational materials for individuals and private enterprises on the three most common cyber-threat risks. These educational toolkits seek to influence responsible cyber behavior through design, empower and mobilize action against cybercrime and help individuals and organizations prevent cyber threats in creative ways.

Data-Driven Research: Behavioral Risk Analysis and Artificial Intelligence (AI) Applications in Cyber Defense

To generate knowledge about pressing cyber issues and thus, ultimately, prescribe adequate application-based solutions, the Crime Commission is researching a variety of pressing questions such as: What are the most important cognitive and affect-heuristic drivers of user behaviors in cybersecurity? How can we use cognitive applications and behavioral analysis to build risk profiles? Can we utilize AI behavioral recognition tools to facilitate a real-time cyber defense?

Our research and analysis will produce a white paper to assist us in the design of targeted and data-driven cybercrime-prevention projects. The commission's team will then develop a plan to collaborate in the creation of an expert working group for cybercrime-prevention innovators. Ultimately, our multidisciplinary analysis will produce policy recommendations, strategic communications, and new application-based solutions designed to augment cybercrime prevention, among other outputs.

YOUTH VIOLENCE PREVENTION

Gun violence is a major concern for youth and families living in the most troubled communities in New York City. The NYPD reports that gun violence is primarily occurring in 15 police precincts and is concentrated among youth ages 14 to 25. Further, the NYPD reports that “crews” (loosely affiliated groups of youth) are responsible for approximately 45% of shooting incidents.

Through continued support from The New York Community Trust, the Crime Commission develops prevention and intervention strategies to stop gun violence. To achieve this, the commission engages in participatory action research to create the most effective services and policies for youth involved in gun violence.

The Crime Commission works towards these goals by collaborating with community-based organizations, government agencies, nonprofits, businesses, and policymakers.

To highlight one achievement of this initiative, the Crime Commission partnered with the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to develop and implement a custom database with Cure Violence sites across NYC. The database will help programs identify best practices, enhance effectiveness, fill gaps, inform policy, and equip sites with the tools to manage program performance, fundraise, and promote success.

In addition, the Crime Commission recently published some of its findings in a series of papers titled Assessing New York City’s Youth Gun Violence Crisis: Crews (which are available on our website at www.nycrimecommission.org).

SOCIAL MEDIA BEHAVIOR & REAL-WORLD CONSEQUENCES

THE NEW SPACE OF CONFLICT

In order to prevent a cycle of retaliation, interventions need to meet youth in the space of conflict, which is increasingly occurring online. Youth use social media to incessantly taunt and threaten each other, buy and sell guns, coordinate shootings, and freely discuss past violence. As such, altercations online quickly turn from virtual to violent, leading to serious real-world instances of gun violence. Such violent posting behavior drastically amplifies and accelerates conflicts, increases the likelihood of retaliation, and further normalizes violence.

As a response, the Crime Commission developed the E-Responder Program in conjunction with NYU, which adapts traditional in-person conflict resolution strategies to be equally effective on social media as well as raise awareness and empower youth to practice responsible social media behavior. Utilizing evidence-informed intervention strategies, the commission developed an intervention that increases problem-solving, emotional regulation, and empathy among users to de-escalate violence and support long-term behavior change.

Interrupting Violence

In order to interrupt violence on social media, the Crime Commission developed the “Interrupting Toolkit”, which outlines steps anti-violence professionals can take when they encounter a risky post. Included in the toolkit is a detailed risk assessment including examples of low, medium, and high risk posts.

Peer Leadership

Risky behavior online is generally tied to real-world circumstances. Therefore, the commission developed a curriculum to support the long-term development of youth by emphasizing prevention-oriented life skills. Further, the curriculum covers topics related to consumption of media and how to engage as a digital citizen.

Raising Awareness and Changing Norms

Changing norms about violence requires raising awareness and strategies to engage the community. Therefore, the commission created a database of serious violent incidents fueled by social media to draw attention to this growing problem. Further, the commission published a series of papers entitled Social Media & Real-World Consequences (which are available on our website at www.nycrimecommission.org).

MAKING CRIMINAL JUSTICE MORE EFFECTIVE

The Crime Commission develops and supports innovative strategies that prevent and fight crime. Through its work the commission seeks to address the question of how government, law enforcement, criminal justice, and community-based programs can work more effectively to prevent crime. By collaborating with stakeholders and facilitating efforts to educate the public, the Crime Commission advocates for reforms to New York's justice system, including:

Improving Conditions in Correctional Facilities

Dramatic and disturbing reports of abuse and violence in New York's jails and prisons have become all too frequent. The problems are clear: lack of training and oversight, an insular culture and outdated methods and technology. To address these issues, the Crime Commission is calling for:

- Comprehensive training for correctional officers to change the aggressive, violent culture in facilities;
- Implementation of body cameras on guards to improve safety and accountability; and
- More extensive oversight including tighter scrutiny from oversight bodies (Inspector General, NYC Board of Correction, State Commission of Correction), public airing of all investigations at facilities, and a secure system for inmates and others to report complaints.

Raising the Age of Criminal Responsibility to 18

Studies ranging from analysis of justice system outcomes, to adolescent brain development, and comparisons of national approaches to justice, all conclude that teens are different than adults and punishing them as adults is ineffective. Despite this overwhelming evidence, New York is one of only two states (North Carolina is the other) that continues to prosecute 16- and 17-year-olds as adults in the criminal justice system, and house them in adult jails and prisons.

The Crime Commission, in partnership with the New York Center for Juvenile Justice – led by retired NY Judge Michael Corriero – is working on a statewide initiative to raise awareness of the negative impacts of treating 16- and 17-year-olds as adults, and to build public support for legislation to raise the age of criminal responsibility in New York to 18 years old for less serious and nonviolent crimes.
